MEMORANDUM FOR: Director, FBIS

THROUGH : Chief, Operations Group

SUBJECT : Monthly Report - Seoul Bureau - August 1985

I. GENERAL

1. On 1 September, after negotiations with Headquarters and careful planning within the Bureau, the midnight shift for a monitor and communicator was ended. From now on the Bureau will be closed from 0100-0600 local time. The midnight shift had never been productive, and was a drain on personnel resources. The mid-night monitor and communicator can be better utilized on day and evening shifts with direct access to U.S. staff supervision. The Bureau can reinstitute the mid-night shift during periods of crisis if necessary, and has worked out procedures under which Okinawa Bureau will be able to provide emergency Korean coverage if we are unable to get people to work quickly in the middle of the night.

2. The Embassy has received approval from the Department of State to implement a revision of the local salary schedule, retroactive to 26 May. If implemented as approved, Embassy employees in grades FSN 1 through FSN 7 will receive no salary increase, and those above FSN 7 will receive an increase averaging 7.7 percent. The Embassy has asked that the plan be reconsidered, with a view to granting small increases to employees in lower grades, since those employees have had no salary increase since 1982. The Bureau is now waiting for PMCD to come up with an appropriate salary schedule for our FBN employees.

II. OPERATIONS

Monitorial/Editorial

1. After working-level contacts were held in Panmunjom on 22-23 August, on the 26th a large ROK Red Cross delegation traveled to Pyongyang for full-scale talks. Just as things looked promising for formal agreement on exchanges of home-visiting groups and art troupes in North and South, the ROK delegation walked out of a militaristic propaganda display at Pyongyang's main stadium. Negotiations bogged down amid DPRK charges of ROK-U.S. perfidy, and the only thing agreed on was that the talks would be resumed later. The working-level contacts, the Pyongyang meetings, and the walkout aftermath generated a large volume of reportage from both sides.

2. Not all surprises for the month occurred in the North. In Seoul since July the government has been cracking down on opposition groups, particularly radical students and labor organizations, and the government and ruling DJP had made extensive and well-publicized preparations to ram through a very controversial "Campus Staliblibization Bill" at a special session of the National Assembly. But on 17 August President Chon abruptly withdrew the bill, responding to strong opposition to it. The DJP "letter of resolution" concerning the bill insisted that withdrawal of the bill was not a "retreat", and that Chon had not had a change of heart.

3. The clandestine radio "Voice of the RPR," which purports to be the voice of underground revolutionaries in the South and which has been broadcasting under this name since 1970, on 8 August announced that the radio was changing its name to "Voice of National Salvation." The name change reflected the change in the party's name, from "Revolutionary Party for Reunification" to the "South Korean National Democratic Front," announced in a Party declaration broadcast by the radio the same day. The declaration outlined a change in strategy to that of a "mass struggle" by people in the South and called for intensified efforts to oust the Americans. However, despite the name change, virtually all programming and content of the broadcasts remain the same.
